Penn State Trustees

I am a Penn State graduate, a former employee, a lifetime member of the Alumni Association and I still love the University and all that it represents, but I find your actions and inactions totally unacceptable and strongly recommend you resign immediately if you have any concern over the University and what its future might be.

Your code of silence on what you have really done will be broken soon. One of your trustees or a deep throat will shine a light on your true actions and inactions. If you think there was a media firestorm in November, it will pale in comparison to the one that comes when your true agenda is no longer secret. You certainly know that investigators that are not under your control are working to surface the facts which will never come from your not-so-independent efforts. You have feared the truth from the outset and we demand the truth.

Your personal liability, which you are all in fear of, will come to be worse than you currently fear once your actions are viewed in the legal system. You should be asking your lawyers how to help you survive once the truth is out rather than using them to shelter the facts. You need to recognize that the game you are trying to play is a losing game, one you cannot win. You cannot control the truth much longer. Its coming and its coming fast.

The students, the Alumni, the faculty and those who love Penn State deserve better. It is you that have shamed the University the most and we all hold you accountable and demand your resignation immediately.
